Lonely Planet guidebooks are, quite simply, like no others.' --New York Times --This text refers to an out of print or unavailable edition of this title.

Who We Are At Lonely Planet, we see our job as inspiring and enabling travellers to connect with the world for their own benefit and for the benefit of the world at large. What We Do * We offer travellers the world's richest travel advice, informed by the collective wisdom of over 350 Lonely Planet authors living in 37 countries and fluent in 70 languages. * We are relentless in finding the special, the unique and the different for travellers wherever they are. * When we update our guidebooks, we check every listing, in person, every time. * We always offer the trusted filter for those who are curious, open minded and independent. * We challenge our growing community of travellers; leading debate and discussion about travel and the world. * We tell it like it is without fear or favor in service of the travellers; not clouded by any other motive. What We Believe We believe that travel leads to a deeper cultural understanding and compassion and therefore a better world.

What a wonderful trip. Beautiful place. Kind people.

Excellent guide. I recommend it to anyone traveling to the Holy Land.

Lonely Planet has the information I need but the Kindle version made it hard to find things at the moment I needed it. The Search didn't always get the things I need, such as "train station Jerusalem", easily - next time I'll take the book

I like how Lonely Planet tries to give substantial background about major cities or areas before delving into specific sites and tourist attractions. Some people might not like that, but I'm a history buff and I found it enjoyable.

Practical.

One of the only books that covers the entire areas and tries to remain as neutral as possible. Also has a section on Petra, which I highly recommend visiting .

this book seems to have forgotten or omitted a lot of great places we found on our own. Get Frommers.

Very, Very Informative !
