Do ghosts really exist? Do I have to give money to every beggar who comes along? Is it okay to be cremated? In these pages, Fr. Michael Kerper has collected and answered over two dozen questions that most of us have asked, but rarely took the time to seek an answer. With wit and enthusiasm, Fr. Kerper tackles each question head-on, relying on Scripture, tradition, the Catechism, and the writing of the saints to provide us with answers. Fast-paced and thoroughly enjoyable, this book provides you with a treasure trove of little-known knowledge to share with your family and friends.

Father Michael Kerper grew up in Philadelphia, attended Catholic schools as a boy, and then studied politics and economics at La-Salle University, labor relations at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, and moral theology at Mount St. Mary's Seminary in Emmitsburg, Maryland. Ordained in 1985 for the Diocese of Manchester, Father Kerper has worked as a parish priest throughout New Hampshire.

I loved this book. It answered many questions that I had about my religion. Particularly akimbo of which I always had trouble with. The date of innocent babies who I believe God would not abandon. I have more questions about this subject.

One of the best books that I have found explaining Church beliefs and helping to build faith. A great book for Catholics to read.

This book has already clarified two of my questions just reading the online "Look Inside"! Can't wait to read it!

A great resource for laypeople who may be confused and misinformed about authentic Catholic teaching. Concise and very readable without theological jargon.

any & all Christians should read this book---Super!

Good for believers and non-believers.

great book to provide basic answers to common catholic questions
