S.E. Burr writes books for young people.

1% Clean: A Funny Story about Fractions and Percents is a great book for a teacher to introduce how we use fractions and percentages in everyday life. The use of humor where the child does not want to take a bath is age appropriate for the children in the middle grades of elementary school that have the challenge of learning fractions and percentages. This is a unique and inventive story using first fractions and then percentages to express the same amount to give the teacher or parent examples of how fractions and percentages relate to one another. About ten years ago I taught 5th grade and I would have loved this short story to create interest and give my students examples they can easily relate to for learning a difficult math concept. I received a copy of this book from the site called Instafreebie and appreciate the opportunity to give my opinion on a good book for elementary school teachers or parents interested in helping their children learn about fractions and percentages.

A cute and fun book to teach young children fractions. The illustrations are simple and work very well to teach the concepts. If I had children I would buy this.

Great idea to disguise a little math in a children's story. Fun pictures to look at and fun rhymes to read aloud.

This is a fun way to get some math, I read it with my grandchildren and they loved it

I'm a grandma and work with a nonprofit that promotes children's literacy. This book is great because it improves both reading and math skills at the same time. Plus kids love the humorous story.

This children's book was funny all my kids laughed and read it over and over again!!
